

Volunteers Victoria Sanchez and Lauren Feeney, both of Duxbury, worked a craft table making beaded bracelets.

Oysters ahoy!

A little rain wasn't going to come between 2,900 hungry people and 40,000 oysters at the Island Creek Oyster Festival, Saturday. The event, in its fourth year, combined food, music and art to raise money for several local and international charities.

Umbrellas were in abundance during the Island Creek Oyster Festival this year.

Members of The Heavy Weights entertained the guests attending the Island Creek Oyster Festival with some reggae.

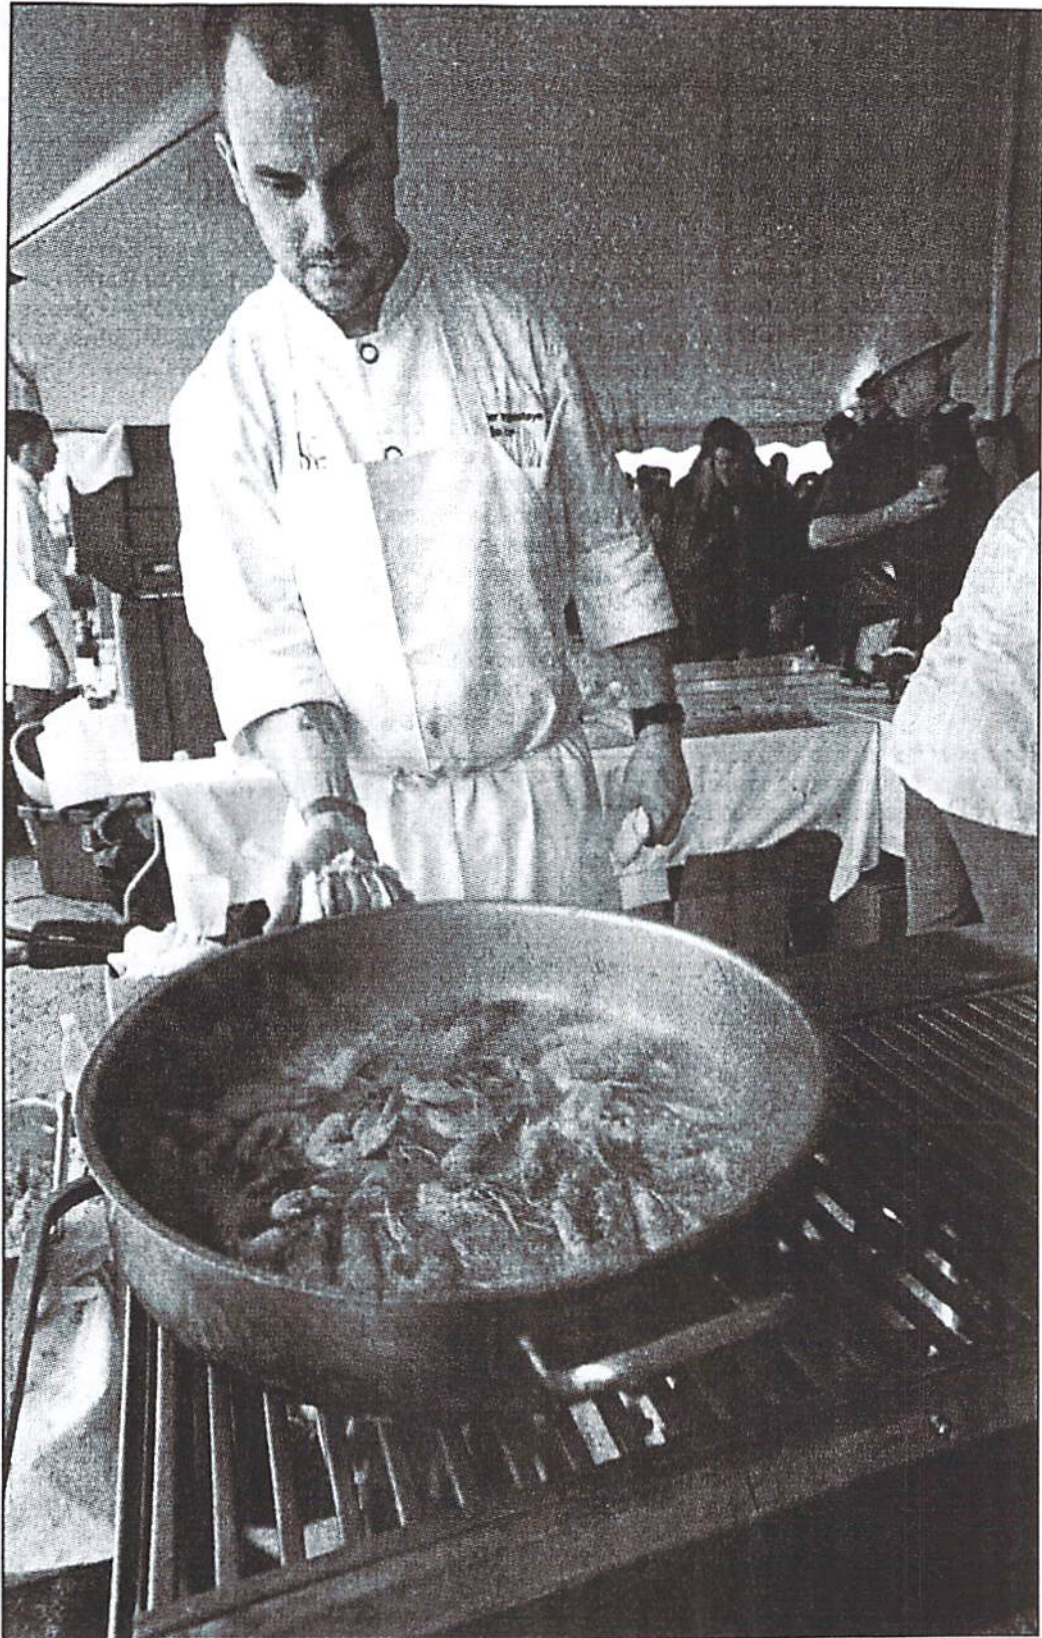

OYSTERS, OYSTERS AS FAR AS THE EYE CAN SEE

P-1 ✓

PHOTO/LAURA SINCLAIR

Chef John Cataldi of Solstice restaurant in Kingston adds some special spicy sauce on to his version of Oysters Rockefeller at the Island Creek Oyster Festival, Saturday. More photos on page 12.

Chef Pieter Sypesteyn, a native of New Orleans, cooks up a batch of New Orleans style shrimp. Pieter uses the recipe at his restaurant Le Reve, which is located in San Antonio, Texas.

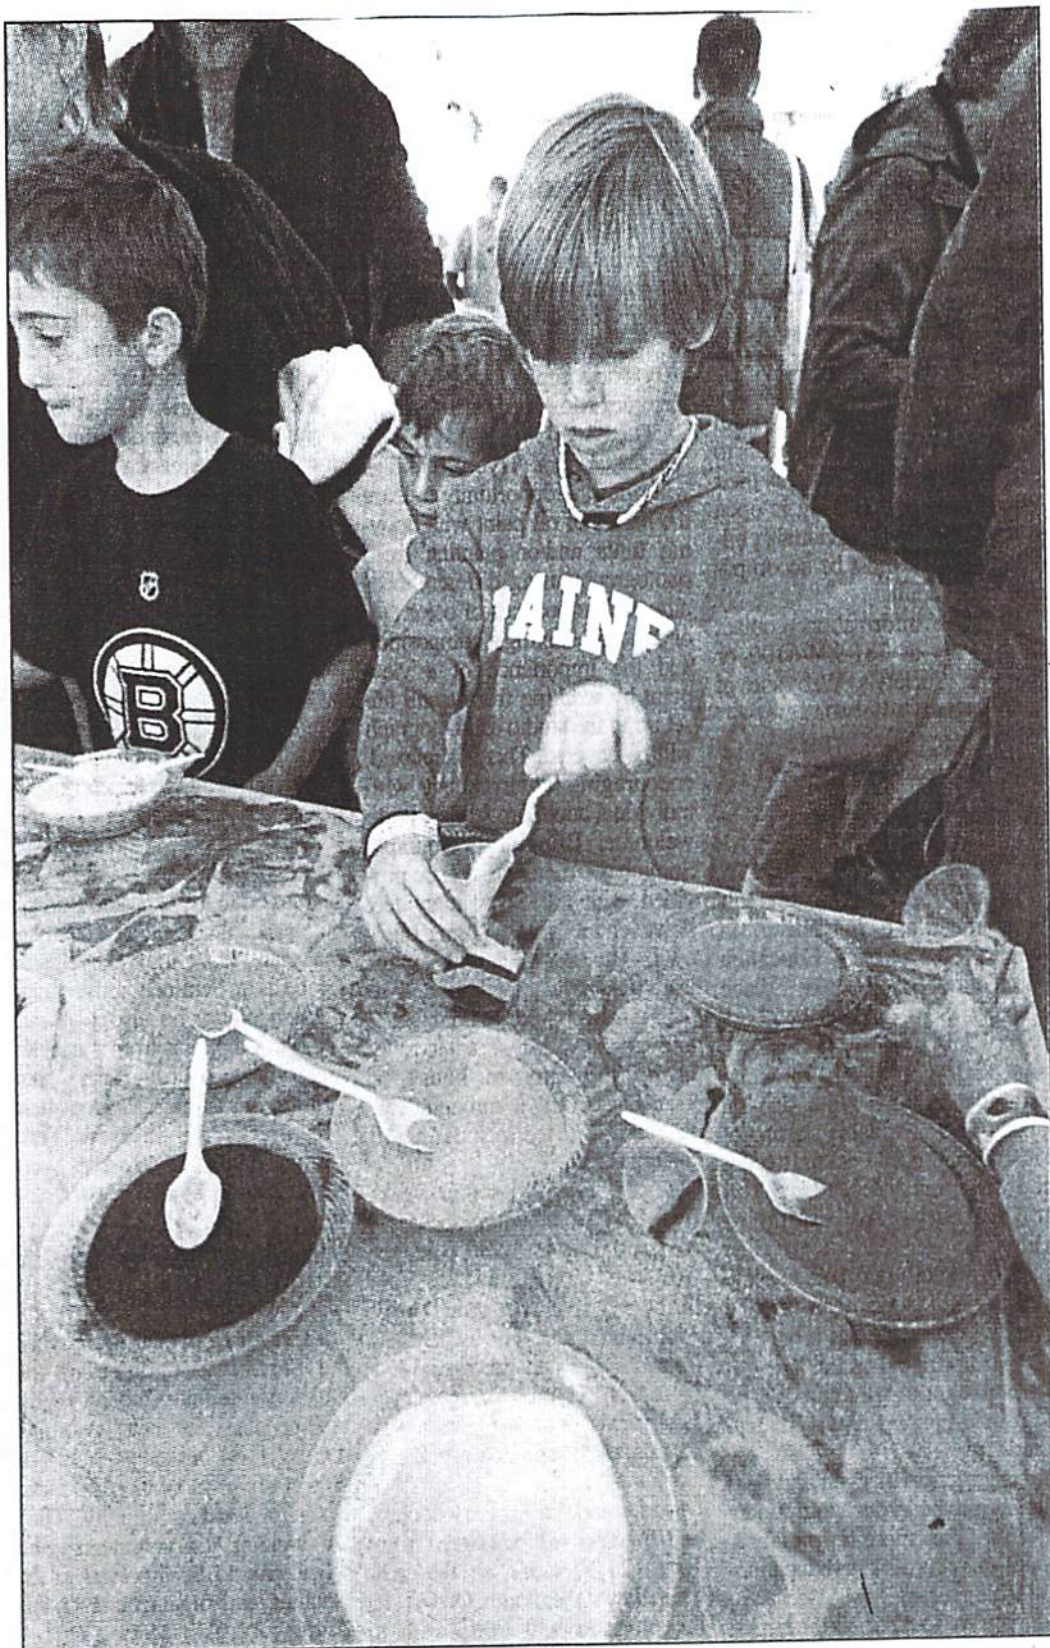

Photos by Laura Sinclair

Colton Morris of Duxbury examines his fish that he caught with his magnetic fishing pole.

L

+

Bo Bouthillier of Dixbury concentrates on his sand art project.